Abstract

The Indian society is highly diversified. Different norms are followed for different culture and also they are gender specific. Parallel to this a new virtual society has also evolved which is termed as Digital society or Digital Inclusion. It is the only place where every culture and every gender (includes all three gender) is equal. No matter whether you belong to any gender the norms remains the same. Digital world provides a platform where access to information is basic right for every member who belongs to it. This right has played a crucial role in awareness of society overall. Digital Inclusion connects people from different creeds and there is always dissemination of knowledge on common area of interest.
